

Is the Name of a Church Important?

I traveled home on a Sunday afternoon and as my chauffeur drove, I tried to locate a Church of Christ or Christian Church from his Internet phone for Sunday evening service. I could not find one having services in the area where we were at that time (60 miles).

Today, churches are not identifying themselves by Christ's Name. They just identify the church and when Christians are traveling they cannot find a congregation that observes the Lord's Supper or preaches the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

If you do not know the specific names of the churches, you cannot find them. The same is true of people moving into their area. Churches do not help their brothers and sisters obey apostolic teaching of the observance of the Lord's Supper, nor listening to faithful Gospel preaching. As a result, by the time churches are located, they are already locked into denominational churches.

To me it is a shame not to mention the Lord's Name so that those traveling can find where His Bride assembles.

The bride should wear the husband's name. When I want to find a married woman, I ought to be able to find her by looking for her husband's name and address.

I don't think Progressives are very practical.
